

Canyon View Middle Students May Appear in Dorito's Next Super Bowl Commercial

By: Trevor Dutton

Did you know we have CVMS students who may soon be famous? Larissa Dabb, Amaranta Serrano, Kennedy Owens, and Erica Bauer are part of a team who put together a commercial for Dorito's. While anybody can do this, it takes a great idea to actually make the final 2. That's right.

Dabb and Bauer auditioned for the commercial after their dance director emailed them letting them know about the auditions. Serrano found out about the opportunity from her parents. The producers said that they would be in contact with them. Two days later, they got an email saying they were in. When asked how difficult the audition was, they said, "It was very simple. The hardest part was walking in a circle, but it wasn't very hard at all."

The commercial was directed by Ellen Treanor. Professional equipment was used. Dabb and Bauer said it was the first time they actually experienced the process of professional filming. The commercial was filmed at Cedar High School in the slanted hallway.

The commercial, featuring Dorito's, is about a high school student who is inspired by his physics teacher to stop a bully with the power of the triangle."

Currently, this commercial is in second place in all of North America. Every student can help it take the lead. So if you want your fellow students on the Super Bowl, vote. Football is What We Do...CVMS Football Has Great Season

By Clara Walker

The 8th grade football team had a pretty good season. They played teams from all over Southern Utah and ended up only losing 2 games all season.

During the first game that the 8th grade A Team played against the Cedar Middle School team, an interception by Colten Shumway led to a unique touchdown that helped earn the victory.

In late September, the CVMS football team played their rivals, Cedar. The Cougars were defending in the third quarter when Shumway caught an interception. Colten started to run the other way, towards the end zone when a Cedar player grabbed his jersey. Tom Isaiah grabbed the Cedar player and yanked him off Colten. Colten's jersey ripped in half as he sprinted towards the end zone for a touchdown.

The player got a holding penalty, and the Cougars were ahead. The game ended in a win for us, and a memorable touchdown. The final score was 20-6. Colten Shumway said, "It was a really good game because we all worked together."

The last game of the season was a playoff game against Pine View on November 1st. It was really cold and windy, but both teams played well. Ryan Christensen said, "It was a good game, and defense did really well." Even though the Cougars lost 12-0, the team agrees that they had a really good season.

Football season is over, but the Cougars only lost two games. CVMS will have a great freshman team next year.
